General Artwork Tips

The first thing to remember when using photos, logos and any other graphics in your designs, is that low resolution images that look great on your monitor may not look that way when printed.

To avoid this, please supply photos and other raster (pixel-based) artwork at a high resolution – 300dpi (dots per inch). If you supply a file at less than 200dpi, we will need to enlarge it, which will lead to a lower quality print. We recommend photo file sizes of 1MB or larger for desk calendars, and 2MB or larger for booklet or wall calendars.

It's also best to choose images that fit the picture area; if the picture space is landscape then choose landscape images so we don't have to crop out any important parts of your image to make it fit the space.

Images from the internet are typically too low resolution for printing. Most images on the internet are protected by copyright so we advise that you only use images you have taken yourself or those purchased from stock image websites. Alternatively, ask your Business Development Manager to help you have a look at the huge range of images available on Corporate+. A small charge applies for these images.

Safe area:

All of our advert templates contain a safe area - the space on the advert where it is 'safe' to put your layout, design and content - ensuring it is not trimmed off.

Advert within safe area

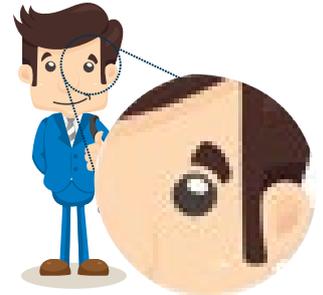

Advert outside safe area

Wherever possible it is best to provide us with vector artwork for logos and other graphics used in your promotional calendar advertising. Zoom in on artwork to test if it is vector or pixel-based. If the edges go fuzzy (below right), then it is not vector art.

Vector artwork allows us to easily resize your artwork without losing quality or detail.

Raster artwork (such as jpg and png files) is made up of pixels and loses detail when resized.

Wherever possible, please supply us with either CMYK or PANTONE artwork.

If you are unable to supply these colour formats, please supply us with a printed sample of your logo/artwork e.g. a business card or letterhead and we will do our best to match the colour.

Acceptable File Types

We request that you supply artwork files in one of the following formats for the best possible print quality.

Illustrator .ai
Ensure all fonts are outlined and relevant PMS colours included.

Acrobat .pdf
We only accept print ready .pdfs with no alterations required. The artwork needs to be set to actual size, PMS colours included and all fonts outlined.

Indesign
.indd or .idml
Please send "packaged" files. Include images, fonts & document.

For full colour adverts we also accept

Photoshop
.jpg or .tif or .psd
Ensure file is CMYK, 300dpi and set to required size.

Files to avoid

Word .doc; Powerpoint .ppt; Publisher .pub; Excel .xls

Unfortunately these file types are not supported by our printing process. If you can only supply one of these file types, please provide us with a printed sample of your artwork (e.g. a business card) and we will endeavour to recreate your artwork for an additional charge.
